INDUSTRIAL

To achieve an Industrial design, one needs to create an illusion of rough surfaces and materials that suggest an industrial past. The simplest way to show roughness is to leave some walls or surfaces unfinished.

Warm, neutral tones of gray paint work well when mixed with white to add a crisp, clean look. One can also add weathered wood, exposed brick, industrial lighting fixtures and concrete to complete that "unfinished look". Done right, the industrial look can range from the raw and edgy to the chic and modern.

MODERN MINIMALIST

JAPANESE ZEN

When a lot less is more. The fundamental principles of minimalism are sharp lines, solid surfaces, low furniture, and pastel shades. Tonal colours such as whites and grays embrace the simplicity of the home.

A bright feature colour such as red is the most popular choice for highlighting details on a white background giving a modern and funky look. Minimalism is especially popular among businessmen and creative people who value the combination of simplicity, sophistication, beauty and practicality.

The interior design of a Zen theme is always expressed in an uncluttered, natural and clean manner exuding a fresh, relaxing and calming feel which can instantly uplift one's mood.

Neutral colours related to the elements such as earth, wood and stone are often used on walls while a red lacquered table in the entrance, a vibrant purple floor cushion on the sofa or a bronze coloured lamp over the dining table can energize the room.

SCANDINAVIAN

The most important colour in the Scandinavian style interior design is white. The walls, ceilings, even the floor and furnishings are predominantly white. Characteristics of this style are simple functional shapes, light coloured wood, simplistic decor, focus on natural lighting and warm colours and nuances, which compensate the lack of warmth and light in the harsh Northern climate. To bring more character into your space, add an eye-catching centrepiece to reflect your personality.

MODERNRUSTIC

It is all about striking a balance between the new and the old. To achieve a modern rustic look, go big on textures and wood elements while maximizing your space with clean lines and quirky furniture. The combination creates a charm that appeals in this era of slick technology and manufactured materials.

The colour palette recommended are forest greens, denim blues, vintage khaki, and deep reds.
